

DEMOSPLASH

2014 October 3rd - 4th
Pittsburgh, PA

WHAT IS DEMOSPLASH ?

Demosplash is one of the largest demoparties in North America, catering both to newcomers to the demoscene as well as established artists.

Demos are live-rendered audiovisual compositions that focus on pushing the limits of the hardware, often historical computing platforms on which real-time rendering can be quite challenging. Unlike many other parties, we strive to show demos live on original hardware as much as possible, offering a viewing experience that can't be matched through emulators or recordings.

Demosplash 2013 attracted over 150 attendees to 18 hours of demo screenings, talks, workshops, open retro gaming, and competitions. We accepted entries from both local and international artists in six competition categories. The demoparty was streamed live to over 100 remote viewers through SceneSat.

This year we continue to partner with VIA Pittsburgh integrating Demosplash with a wide range of other new media events. The event is held at Carnegie Mellon University and receives support from several university entities, including the School of Computer Science and the Frank-Ratchye STUDIO for Creative Inquiry.

WHO WE ARE

The Carnegie Mellon University Computer Club is a group of students and alumni dedicated to advocating for computing, educating about and preserving historical computing, and producing services for our campus community since 1978. The Club has been active in the demoscene since 2011.
